

Small/Mid Cap Growth Fund

FUND FACTS

OBJECTIVE

Seeks long-term capital growth from investments in common stocks or other equity securities

Share class	I
Inception	6/30/2015
Ticker	LSMIX
CUSIP	543488779

Market Conditions

- The month of September was the key part of the quarter. Market dynamics changed dramatically, and trends that had previously been in favor sharply reversed, giving way to new leadership groups during the last month of the quarter.
- A style rotation from growth to value occurred in the small cap segment of the market. A rotation of that magnitude hadn't occurred in more than a decade.
- The Russell 2500 Value index outperformed the Russell 2500 Growth index by close to 6.5 percentage points during the month of September.
- Those companies with slower growth profiles and less expensive valuations (using P/E) outperformed their faster growth and more expensive counterparts.

Portfolio Review

- The fund underperformed its benchmark, the Russell 2500 Growth Index, primarily due to stock selection in the consumer discretionary, information technology and materials sectors.

Contributors

- Stock selection in the health care, industrials and financials sectors were the largest positive contributors to relative performance.
- Among individual companies, medical device company Insulet Corp. and industrials companies Generac Holdings Inc. and Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers Inc. were the top contributors to performance.

Additional share classes may be available for eligible investors. Performance will vary based on the share class. Performance for periods less than one year is cumulative, not annualized. Returns reflect changes in share price and reinvestment of dividends and capital gains, if any. You may not invest directly in an index.

Gross expense ratio 1.42% (Class I). Net expense ratio 0.85%. As of the most recent prospectus, the investment advisor has contractually agreed to waive fees and/or reimburse expenses once the expense cap of the fund has been exceeded. This arrangement is set to expire on 1/31/2021. When an expense cap has not been exceeded, the fund may have similar expense ratios.

The Class I inception date is 6/30/2015. Class I shares are only available to certain institutional investors only; minimum initial investment of $1,000,000.

- Insulet reported a very strong quarter. The company saw patient starts at record highs, as new channels helped drive demand and a newer product showed strong initial market penetration.
- Generator manufacturer Generac Holdings was also a strong performer as the company continued to execute well, particularly in its home standby generator business.
- Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers reported results ahead of expectations due largely to its auctions and marketplace business segment. The US was a particularly strong market for the company.

Detractors

- Stock selection in the consumer discretionary, information technology and materials sectors detracted the most from relative performance.
- The three largest detractors from performance among individual companies were medical device companies Merit Medical Systems Inc. and Wright Medical Group NV, along with enterprise software company Everbridge Inc..
- Merit Medical Systems reported revenue that fell short of expectations and lowered its guidance. There were concerns about the confidence in future guidance as well as about declining margins.
- Medical device company Wright Medical reported disappointing results and lowered guidance. Core revenue is expected to remain under pressure due to issues in the company's lower extremity business segment.
- Enterprise software company Everbridge reported solid results during the quarter, but the stock declined in light of volatility in billings. The volatility was due largely to the timing of Everbridge's booking large deals.

Outlook

- As we look forward, we continue to be focused on the underlying business trends of our existing holdings and potential new additions to ensure revenue and earnings growth trends can remain intact, which may prove challenging if earnings estimates continue to see downward pressure.
- Markets may become more volatile as investors search for clues about the health of the global economy. Central banks appear to be willing to support the global economy, which may reduce some near-term risks. However, US trade policy remains a source of uncertainty for corporate decision makers and investors. If the US-China trade war is resolved, there could be a rebound in the broader global economy towards the end of the year. Business confidence indicators in the US have shown some signs of weakness, and the inversion of the yield curve further supports the markets position at the later stages of the cycle. Volatility remained subdued at period-end, but macroeconomic and geopolitical events could cause volatility to return.
- While this outlook isn't entirely clear, we will not attempt to alter our process. Our goal, as always, is to deliver to our clients a compelling level of positive risk-adjusted returns that compound over time.

About Risk

Equity securities are volatile and can decline significantly in response to broad market and economic conditions. Investments in small and mid-size companies can be more volatile than those of larger companies. Growth stocks may be more sensitive to market conditions than other equities, as their prices strongly reflect future expectations. Foreign and emerging market securities may be subject to greater political, economic, environmental, credit, currency and information risks. Foreign securities may be subject to higher volatility than US securities due to varying degrees of regulation and limited liquidity. These risks are magnified in emerging markets.

Russell 2500™ Growth Index measures the performance of the small to mid cap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 2500™ companies with higher growth earning potential as defined by Russell's leading style methodology. The Russell 2500™ Growth Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer of the small to mid cap growth market. The Index is completely reconstituted annually to ensure larger stocks do not distort the performance and characteristics of the true small to mid cap opportunity set and that the represented companies continue to reflect growth characteristics.

Indexes are unmanaged and do not incur fees. It is not possible to invest directly in an index. Russell Investment Group is the source and owner of the trademarks, service marks and copyrights related to the Russell Indexes. Russell® is a trademark of Russell Investment Group.
